

200 Years Of The Royal Society For The Prevention Of Cruelty To Animals (RSPCA)

- 1) It's the 200th anniversary of the England and Wales RSPCA today
Who have come to the rescue of many an animal with no delay
To provide assistance never seen before
This charity was first founded on the 16th June 1824

- 2) This is the oldest and largest animal welfare organisation in the world yes
Though lots of others have been formed worldwide or so I guess
Completely helping plenty a different animal out
By deeply assisting them in staying well no doubt

- 3) Over the last 200 years for creature after creature
There has, through man-kind, been provided plenty a life-saving feature
Worldwide people covering oh quite a distance
To animal's health and safety come of much great assistance

- 4) Today there will be lots of RSPCA celebration
With not a slight bit of hesitation
Hoping it's generous support will continue forever
Animal creatures neglected again at all never
